6. God Our Father

Unaided reason can arrive only at an imperfect knowledge of God. It can demonstrate with certainty that there is a Supreme Being who is our First Cause and Last End. Any further knowledge of God will demand special efforts on the part of our reasoning powers. But when man's mind is enriched with the treasures of divine revelation, a new, supernatural world opens up before it. It now beholds more clearly the infinite perfections of God, His divine attributes, His greatness and His majesty, His nearness to us, our dependence upon Him. It was the contemplation of God's majesty which made the Psalmist exclaim, "O Lord our Lord: how admirable is thy name in the whole earth! For thy magnificence is elevated above the heavens" (Ps. 8:2). It was an appreciative understanding of the ways of God's providence which made St. Paul cry out with rapture, "Oh the depth of the riches of the wisdom and of the knowledge of God! How incomprehensible are his judgments, and how unsearchable his ways" (Rm. 11:33).

1. The greatness and majesty of God.

(a) God is infinitely perfect. The Psalmist tells us that "the heavens show forth the glory of God: and the firmament declareth the work of his hands" (Ps. 18:2). Yet if you would heap together all the perfections of the universe - the grandeur and beauty of all scenes of nature, the mighty heaving of the ocean, the strength and massiveness of tall, snow-clad mountains, the perfections of all mineral, plant and animal species, the wisdom, holiness, and goodness of man - you would have only a faint image of the perfections of God, of which all earthly perfections are only a faint vestige. Every perfection in God is infinite and supreme in range and intensity. It can receive no further increase or addition; it is not subject to limitations; it cannot fall short or fail. Every perfection of God surpasses our understanding: "We shall say much, and yet shall want words: but the sum of our words is, He is all. What shall we be able to do to glorify him? For the Almighty Himself is above all His works. The Lord is terrible and exceedingly great: and His power is admirable. Glorify the Lord as much as ever you can: for He will yet far exceed, and his magnificence is wonderful. Blessing the Lord, exalt him as much as you can, for he is above all praise. When you exalt him put forth all your strength and be not weary: for you can never go far enough" (Ecclus. 43:29-34). Let us pause in silence before these awesome infinities of God.

The Creed

by Msgr. Rudolph G. Bandas, Ph.D.; S.T.D.

5. The Preservation of our Faith (cont'd)

5. Private Revelations (cont'd): A private revelation, whose truth has not been established by the Church, binds no one. Hence, it is unbecoming and uncharitable for devotees of certain alleged revelations to accuse and condemn as lacking in faith those who refuse to share in their enthusiasm. Of the last twenty alleged Marian revelations, the Church has approved only one, and in that way has saved sacred doctrine and devotions from distortion and ridicule.

A private revelation approved by the Church or confirmed by a miracle (God could not work a miracle in favor of an untruth) is to be accepted by those to whom and for whom it was made. It may be read for edification - as any spiritual book. It may not be used to establish a new doctrine in the Church but rather to confirm an existing truth. The Church would not approve a doctrine, a feast, or a devotion whose only foundation is a private revelation. Devotions to the Immaculate Conception and Sacred Heart are based on Scripture and Tradition. Even if the apparitions at Lourdes and Paray-le-Monial were declared false, the truths and devotions of the Sacred Heart and Immaculate Conception would not be in any way affected.

6. Truths of Faith absolutely necessary for salvation: Suppose a person who is ignorant of religion were dying, and you had only a few minutes to instruct him. How many truths would he be obliged to accept by faith before he could hope to save his soul? These four: (a) Besides the world in which we live, God also made another world where we shall live after death and see Him face to face. (b) God punishes the evil with hell, and He rewards the good with heaven. (c) There are three Persons in one God. (d) The Second Person became man and died for us. Theologians say that if the person were dying, it would be sufficient to teach him truths (a) and (b) since these implicitly contain (c) and (d) (Heb. 11:6). After making an act of faith in these truths, the person can make an act of perfect sorrow or contrition and so attain heaven. Only those non-Catholics who follow this procedure will obtain salvation. It is false to say that all non-Catholics will be saved as long as “they follow their own light.”
